The European Commission Launches a Public Consultation on Competences for Lifelong Learning

On 22 February the European Commission launched a public consultation in view to update the 2006 Recommendation on Key Competences for Lifelong Learning (2006/962/EC). The review was announced in the European Commission's New Skills Agenda for Europe and seeks to develop a shared understanding of key competences needed and to further foster their introduction in educational and training curricula.

The public consultation will run until 19 May 2017. You can find it here.
